

JIM THOMPSON

For over half a century Jim Thompson has been recognised globally as a treasured name in Thai silk production. Less known is our capability to create and customise high performance fabrics, that are suitable for non-residential and contract specific projects, without compensating on quality or design.

At Jim Thompson we pride ourselves on being a vertically integrated company, incorporating quality-controlled measures in to every aspect of the fabric production process. This ranges from silkworm cultivation and yarn manufacturing, to designing, weaving, printing, and treating. Our facility includes our own treatment lab where we can treat for fire retardancy and Teflon coating; water and stain repel; and knit or paper back, to enhance the technical qualities of our products. By working with each department, Jim Thompson has the capabilities to create beautiful contract fabrics and custom weaves, to suit each of our clients individual design needs.

Alongside producing exquisite fabrics, Jim Thompson has an extensive wallpaper range suitable for contract projects. All of our wall-coverings pass the European Class B standard, the highest safety requirement, without compromising on the luxurious nature of the designs.

Jim Thompson delights in building longstanding relationships with our clients, who include some of the world's foremost architects and interior designers. Our wonderful hand-woven textiles and decadent wall-coverings have adorned the most opulent interiors of some of the world's most exclusive luxury developments, from hotels to private aviation and super-yachts, making Jim Thompson a befitting choice for high-end hospitality projects.

Hotels

Jim Thompson has worked alongside some of the most innovative names in architectural and interior design. Prestigious projects include creating customised fabrics for Ed Tuttle's famed designs, for example the Park Hyatt hotels in Paris and Milan, as well as the Aman resorts worldwide. The Rockwell Group, headed by David Rockwell, also specified our fabrics for notable projects including Hotel Bel-Air, Los Angeles and The Cosmopolitan, Las Vegas. Jim Thompson has had a longstanding relationship with acclaimed designer Mary Fox Linton, who has used our fabrics in many of her projects including the Carlisle Bay in Antigua. Our far-reaching collaborations reflect that Jim Thompson designs can be adapted for a multitude of styles and uses. From luxury, alps-inspired ski resorts in France to chic boutique hotels and spas in Shanghai, Jim Thompson's unique, bespoke designs can be found embellishing the walls of high-end establishments in a myriad of styles and colour schemes.

Our fabrics are designed to meet international safety standards without compensating on the luxury of our designs. Jim Thompson fabrics can be treated for fire-retardancy and water-repellency, with woven constructions to insure a high Martindale result is attained, where required. Trevira CS yarns are a popular choice as they are inherently fire-retardant.

Yachts and Planes and Boats

Our traditional weaves have been innovatively adapted for night performance and outdoor use, indicating that range, luxury and quality need not be sacrificed when durability and suitability for specific locations is of the upmost importance. Jim Thompson proudly boasts an extensive collection of outdoor fabrics, with an array of variable, sumptuous designs to suit all tastes and styles, including lavish, textured velvets and bold linens.

Working closely with Ed Tuttle, Jim Thompson fabrics have been exclusively used for the interiors of Maha Bhetra, a traditionally Thai, wooden 90 ft. boat, made available solely for the guests at Amanpuri in Phuket. Jim Thompson fabrics have also featured on the Princess 98 Motor Yacht and the Sunseeker Blush 155.

For the aviation sector, Jim Thompson has the capability to treat for hydro-ability and passes the high safety requirements and standards for planes. Our clientele includes leading names in first class air travel, as well as personal projects for influential private jet owners.

Retail

Jim Thompson fabrics have been used to enrich the environment of numerous luxury boutiques and upmarket department stores. Big names include Cartier, Tiffany's, the Christian Laboutin boutique in Bangkok,

Liberty London and specified fabrics for the acclaimed LVMH group. Our extensive variety of bold, colourful and unique prints and classic handwoven silks work perfectly in a boutique environment, enhancing both space and customer experience. Jim Thompson has fabrics to suit multiple specifications; our textiles suitable for curtains have good light fastness, while our upholstery fabrics are luxurious with a high Martindale result for long-lasting durability.
